President's Message

Dear Friends,

oconino Community College has many challenges and yet is thriving in many ways because of the support of our communities, and it is important for you to know that we could not do what we do without you. The story of our College is the story of each student we serve. Those stories make up the book that is the future of our families, our county, our state, and our nation. According to an Editorial Board of the National Office of Community College initiatives:

Since their inception, it has been far easier to praise the idea of community colleges than support their success . . . they remain the least-funded institutions in higher education. Yet community colleges enroll more students than any other public postsecondary segment, provide higher education access to even the most underprepared students, train people for a variety of vocational careers, respond to the training demands of local businesses, and address the social and cultural needs of their surrounding communities.

It is through our communities' generous gifts of personal resources and time that Coconino Community College has the opportunity to positively impact the future. That means each of you are making a significant difference in the lives of many people. The commitment shown by members of the Coconino Community College District Governing Board and the Coconino Community College Foundation Board as they work to help all of us find solutions that support the education of so many is astounding. I am honored to serve with all of you and grateful that you care deeply about our students and the gift of education in everyone's lives.

Colleen A. Smith, PhD,

CCC President

Foundation President's Message

As the new President of the Coconino Community College Foundation, I would first like to thank Joseph Donaldson for his many years of service as the Foundation President and for his many years as a Foundation Board Member and donor.

There are many opportunities ahead, and I am excited about the future of the Foundation and Coconino Community College. This past fiscal year was filled with successes, including the addition of two endowed scholarships that have nudged us closer to the goal of half a million dollars of endowed scholarships. More importantly, thanks to the endowments, we will be able to assist two students each year with scholarships in perpetuity.

Additionally, the Foundation has applied for and received grants for nursing and veterans services, creating a better learning environment for our students, and positively impacting our community by providing the tools that help the college provide a well-trained work force.

Looking to the future, the Foundation is creating a strategic plan that will focus on providing even more scholarships for our students, help the College fund new programs that will impact even greater numbers in our community, and look for ways for the Foundation to become sustainable.

All of this would not be possible without the efforts of the CCC Foundation Board and your financial support, helping the College help our community members change their lives through the power of education.

Andy Phillips,
CCC Foundation President

Foundation Director's Message

Fiscal year 2016-2017 was a very good year for the Foundation, and when the Foundation has a good year, it's good for the College and good for our students. I am thankful for all of those who have contributed in some way to make it happen.

All that has been accomplished would be impossible without the leadership of the College including the District Governing Board, President Smith, Foundation Board and Executive Council. I'd also like to thank the College staff, faculty, community volunteers and the many donors including individual, corporate and private foundation donors that provide money for scholarships, programs and operating expenses, all of which add to the total sum of assistance for the Foundation and the students we support.

Finally, I'd like to thank our many partners in the community including businesses, fellow educational institutions, non-profit organizations, and local, state, and tribal government agencies, all contributing to student success.

I am truly humbled to work with all of you and proud to be a part of such a worthy common goal.

Scott Talboom, Executive Director of Institutional Advancement

Agencies help CCC Vet Center with facelift

Computers stand ready at desks. Large, soft sofas face a television screen. The kitchen waits to be of service, and staff members are at the ready to lend a helping hand.

It's a comfortable, safe place for veterans going back to college.

The Coconino Community College Veteran Center at the Lone Tree Campus began receiving a facelift in the spring semester, and work was completed before the beginning of the fall semester.

Kevin Scholler is a U.S. Navy veteran and a CCC graduate on his way to Northern Arizona University. He works part-time at the Welcome Desk and uses the Veteran Center on occasion.

"The CCC Veteran Center has a welcoming atmosphere," Scholler said. "There's always something in the kitchen to eat. It's nice to have somewhere to study and be with people who have been through the same stuff."

There is a bond, a brotherhood, in having been in the Armed Forces and serving the country, Scholler added.

"At the Veteran Center, it's a place you can open up," Scholler said.

CCC serves between 100 and 110 veterans in the fall semester, said Bob Voytek, Director of Financial Aid and Veteran Services at CCC. The College serves about 160 veterans an academic year, and they would all, including dependents, be able to use the newly remodeled Veteran Center.

The decision to dedicate a space specifically for veterans was the idea of CCC President Colleen A. Smith, Voytek said.

President Smith said that members of Support Education and Employment for Vets (S.E.E.4Vets) approached her and said that if there were anything they could do to help veterans at CCC, they had grants to help.

"I thought this was exciting because veteran issues, particularly the return to school or to recareer, are such a priority to the College and the District Governing Board," Dr. Smith said. "Sometimes different groups of students have different needs, and we are aware of that."

"Veterans come to college with very different experiences," Voytek said.

Student veterans are more mature, have seen the world more than their traditional student counterparts. The veterans have a different perspective on life, and the Veteran Center is a place where they can communicate with others who "get it," Voytek said. To "get it" is to understand being deployed and putting life at risk halfway around the world.

Intially, CCC's previous president, Dr. Leah Bornstein, dedicated the space for veterans, but the kitchen was also shared with staff and made the space difficult for veterans to have a secure and confidential environment, Voytek said. So, President Smith suggested devoting the entire space to veterans, and with the help of the grant from S.E.E.4Vets, CCC staff members were able to make a safe, comfortable and inviting place for veterans to congregate while on campus. The Home Depot Foundation, SounDecision, Herron Interior Design, Inc., Classic Leather, Inc., and the CCC Facilities staff all assisted in making the remodel of the Veteran Center possible.

"We were extremely fortunate to have S.E.E.4Vets offer to fund the vast majority of the remodel," Voytek said. "It allowed us to give the veterans something they needed."

There's a full kitchen, desks with computers to do school work, recliners, a television, free printing, and in the future, tutoring services and group study sessions will be brought in as well.

Charli Hausam, Financial Aid and Veteran Advisor, said the veterans at CCC have been all smiles with the remodel.

"They're very happy and appreciative and feel like they're being recognized for the first time in a long time," Hausam said, adding that many colleges do not have Veteran Centers.

The Veteran Center helps CCC student veterans access community resources they need to be successful in their lives and in their college experiences, Hausam said. There's even a little food pantry to help veterans who need a good meal to get them through the day.

Dr. Smith added that she appreciates the work of Voytek, Hausam and Rachel Edelstein, Alumni and Donor Relations Coordinator at CCC's Office of Institutional Advancement, to get the project to become a reality with the help of the Facilities Department.

Scholler, for one, is appreciative of the Veteran Center at CCC.

"It's really nice looking," Scholler said. "I was blown away when I walked in. It's nice to see the school cares enough to do something like this for veterans."

CCC first president's legacy honored with new scholarship

CCC's first President, Dr. John W. Glenn

The Coconino Community College Foundation and the wife of the College's first president have teamed up to form a scholarship to help students for years to come.

The Dr. John W. Glenn Memorial Scholarship is set to launch in the fall of 2018 with the help of Dr. Glenn's wife, Janet Glenn. Dr. Glenn passed away in February 2015.

The scholarship will be available to students returning to college or students with special circumstances. Janet Glenn designed the criteria for the scholarship, which funds students going back to school later in life. That is just what she did, with the full support of Dr. Glenn, who was always very proud of her achievement to earn a degree and become a teacher after raising their three children.

With the Dr. John W. Glenn Memorial Scholarship, Janet Glenn will not only honor her late husband's legacy at CCC, she will give back to the College by helping returning students achieve their dreams, just as she was able to do.

Janet Glenn has graciously given $20,000 to the CCC Foundation to be used as a starting amount for this scholarship fund. It will be an endowed scholarship, meaning the fund is open to contributions and will also accrue value each year through interest which will be awarded to students for scholarships every year in perpetuity.

Dr. Glenn was at the latter end of his career when he and CCC crossed paths. He had been working at NAU as the Dean of Continuing Education and Director of Summer and Instructional TV Programs prior to his time with CCC.

When CCC first opened its doors in 1991, the College was in dire need of a president. NAU's President at the time, Dr. Eugene Hughes, offered up Dr. Glenn as a loan to CCC to become the president of the College for its first year of operation. After Dr. Glenn's time as a "loaned" president was up, he applied for the position permanently and became CCC's president. He served as the President of CCC until 1994.

Dr. Glenn first came to NAU in 1966, where he was a professor of Industrial Education before becoming the Dean of Continuing Education.

Prior to his professional career in education, Dr. Glenn received an associate's degree from the Southern Illinois Vocational Technical Institute, a bachelor's degree from Southern Illinois University, and an M.Ed. and a Ph.D. from the University of Missouri.

When Glenn first became CCC's president, he expected roughly 140 students to apply in the first semester. Almost 1,000 students showed up at the College to apply. By the end of his tenure, CCC had nearly 4,000 students, full-time and part-time. In addition to this massive explosion in student population, enrollment levels were being reached in two years instead of the expected five to six years.

Much of this early success at CCC can be attributed to Dr. Glenn's leadership at the College. Without his devotion to the College in its earliest years, it would not be the same CCC that students enjoy today. And now, with the help of the Dr. John W. Glenn Scholarship, his legacy as CCC's first president will live on at the College forever, and his name will continue to make a positive impact on students in perpetuity.

Eric Pellatz Scholarship to honor late CCC student

Eric Pellatz was a student who absolutely loved being at CCC. His family said that his times as a student at CCC were some of the happiest times of his life. He excelled academically and was always extremely grateful for the assistance CCC was able to give him as a student.

Pellatz passed away in May of 2016 at age 31.

Knowing how happy their son was at CCC, his parents, Randall and Gayle, wanted to honor their son's legacy and also give back to the College in any way they could.

The Pellatz family established an endowed scholarship with the help of friends, colleagues and family in their son's name in July of 2016. The Eric Pellatz Memorial Scholarship for Students with Disabilities is an endowed scholarship that is open for additional contributions.

The fund will accrue value each year through interest which will be awarded to students for scholarships every year in perpetuity, benefiting students while also honoring Eric's legacy.

On behalf of the Pellatz family, the CCC Foundation expresses gratitude to any who choose to contribute to the Eric Pellatz Memorial Scholarship.

Alum hits workforce debt free - thanks to scholarships

A dam Bradley got married in 2010. He had a high school diploma, but a high school education didn't serve the goal he had: To work with computers.

"I was running into issues finding a job," Bradley added.

So, he decided to enroll at Coconino Community College in 2011, and now, a graduate of Northern Arizona University, he has reached his goal. He did it without going into debt, which he is grateful for, thanks to the help of several scholarships, like the Raymond Educational Foundation Scholarship, he received on his educational journey.

Before enrolling at CCC, Bradley hadn't been a very good high school student, so he had to catch up on math and English skills. He took general studies courses. Through the course of his studies, he excelled, received top grades and ultimately became a member of the Phi Theta Kappa Honors Society while at CCC.

"I originally didn't have any kind of plan to transition to NAU," Bradley said, adding that he expected to get an associate degree and then head out into the workforce. But, while his time at CCC was winding down, his advisor, who worked in the CCC2NAU program designed to help transition CCC students to the university, counseled him that he should transfer to the business program at NAU.

"I was worried about the cost," Bradley said. "NAU was even more expensive a place to study."

Just like he had done at CCC, Bradley began searching out and applying for scholarships that would help him study at NAU. He was successful, and his academic achievements were noticed as a member of the Beta Gamma Sigma Honors Society at NAU.

Now, he is a Business Analyst Associate at NAU's Office of Sponsored Projects. He works closely with management to help integrate data into the business model to help determine how software can support the business process. The work fits his goals.

His desire to seek scholarships was based in fear.

"I got a lot of motivation to stay out of debt," he said. "But I wanted to learn."

He looked and asked for help.

"I realized, after receiving some scholarships, there are people at CCC and at NAU who help to find those opportunities and there are a lot of those opportunities out there," Bradley said. "But I had to put in the work."

He also said that he is grateful for the scholarships he received.

"I don't think I'd be where I am now," Bradley said. "The thought of taking out loans probably would have stopped me from going to school."

He and his wife had a son, who turned 1 on July 4. He can focus on supporting his family, instead of paying a lender.

CCC graduate Adam Bradley enjoys his new career at NAU without the worries of debt.

Bradley encourages people considering higher education to explore scholarship opportunities.

"I do like to let people know if they are considering school there are a lot of scholarship opportunities out there," he said. "Knowing people believe in you and want to support you, it helps so much and you want to earn it. It drives you to want to earn it."

He added: "If you get scholarships, you'll be happy you did."

'Little Johnnie' joins Trauma HAL at CCC

A new simulator mannequin has joined the Coconino Community College team to help students in the health professions get important handson training.

The mannequin, a pediatric version of Trauma HAL nicknamed "Little Johnnie," blinks his eyes, talks and even bleeds. Students can ask him questions to find out what ails him, just like any human. He joins his older counterpart, an adult simulator mannequin called Trauma HAL.

"Nursing, Emergency Medical Service, Fire, Paramedic and Certified Nursing Assistant students, will all benefit from HAL and Little Johnnie," said Lori Edwards, CCC's Director of Nursing and Allied Health. "Even though we have HAL, the students need to learn about pediatrics as well. Children have different scenarios and lifesaving treatments than adults."

Just like Trauma HAL, Little Johnnie has lungs, organs, ribs and plumbing. He comes with a variety of "wound packages" for the students to learn from. Among them are broken bones, sores, burns and even amputations. Like HAL, Little Johnnie is equipped with computer technology that allows for wireless diagnostics and interaction between students and patient through a proctor-assisted process.

David Manning, CCC's Fire Science and Emergency Medical Service Program Coordinator, left, and Lori Edwards, CCC's Director of Nursing and Allied Health, check on Little Johnnie at the Fourth Street Campus.

"Having Little Johnnie with HAL enables the EMS student in the field to treat both together," Edwards said. "Scenarios can be created to include traffic accidents, home accidents, or any trauma where a family may be together. Students will also have the ability to assess and treat in the lab prior to going to the clinical facility and working with real patients."

Trauma HAL, who made his debut last year, has been around town participating in a variety of training scenarios. He has also been instrumental in assessment training of the students. Little Johnnie is scheduled to be included in trainings in the next month.

"We are very happy to have Little Johnnie with us at CCC," Edwards said. "To have real-life simulation enhances the student learning and retention."

The purchase of Little Johnnie was nearly $40,000, and funding came from the Northern Arizona Healthcare Foundation and the Capstone Health Fund through a grant from the Arizona Community Foundation of Flagstaff (Healthcare Fund). Additional funding came from a Perkins Grant from the U.S. Department of Education.

Designing her future at CCC

CCC student Suzanne Dison will be moving on to NAU to study graphic design thanks to the help of scholarships at CCC.

Her dream was graphic design, but it had been years since she'd been at school.

Suzanne Dison, who graduated in May with an associate degree and now off to NAU, has a story that is filled with more than three years of dedication and remarkable academic success while at Coconino Community College.

Dison began her most recent academic career at CCC in the summer of 2014. It had been a long time since she had been back to school, but she knew she wanted to go back. With Suzanne living in Flagstaff, CCC seemed like a great place to start a new academic legacy.

Her chosen field of study when beginning at CCC was graphic design.

Raymond members dedicated to education

Flagstaff residents Mike and Sarah Cromer have been dedicated to education nearly their entire adult lives.

"We were both teachers," Mike said.

Additionally, Mike's father, Sturgeon Cromer, was superintendent of Flagstaff public schools from 1947-71.

"I remember my dad saying that public education is so important," Mike said. "It gives people, even the less fortunate, an opportunity."

Now, both both Mike and Sarah are retired from teaching, after putting in more than 30 years each as teachers. Nevertheless, they continue to work for education. They volunteer for the Raymond Educational Foundation -Mike as a board member, Sarah as a general member. The Raymond Educational Foundation supports scholarships at Coconino Community College Northern Arizona University.

"It helps young people," Sarah said. "Anything we can do to help."

According to information from the Raymond Educational Foundation, R.O. Raymond was a Flagstaff physician who established the foundation in 1952 to give financial aid to residents in Coconino County interested in furthering their education. the foundation's inception, it has granted more than $5 million to various students and organizations like CCC.

At CCC, there are two-year, one-year and CCC2NAU Raymond scholarships. Between and 30 Raymond awards are distributed each year through the CCC Foundation. About $20,000 are distributed in CCC2NAU Raymond awards, and $26,400 are distributed in one-year and-two year Raymond awards each year.

The current Raymond Educational Foundation board members are Drew Annan, president; Patricia Garcia, vice president, secretary and treasurer; Mark McCullough; Tom Britt; Mike Cromer; Bruce Crozier; Pat Nackard; Monica Gaylord; and Annette Avery.

Mike and Sarah Cromer have dedicated their lives to education.

Robert Gaylord serves as the executive secretary. Another 30 people serve as general members.

"It was the most wonderful time of my life," Mike said. "It was a magical time. We're blessed. We're the most fortunate people in the world for having taught the children on the Southside."

Part of the beauty of having been teachers at the same school, South Beaver School, for so long is the fact that they got to teach more than one generation of members of the same family.

"We love to keep up with the lives of our students," Sarah said. "We had fun and loved the young people."

In addition to serving with the Raymond Educational Foundation, the Cromers also give out their own scholarship to Flagstaff High School and Coconino High School students to attend college.

How long do they plan on dedicating themselves to education, like being involved with the Raymond Educational Foundation?

"As long as we live," Sarah said, smiling.

Mike added, "We want to be involved with education for the rest of our lives. We're all in this thing together to try to make the world a better place."

Designing her future (continued)

"I love graphic design and that's what I wanted to do," said Dison.

Dison's parents did not receive higher education, making her a first-generation college student. This made her eligible to be a part of CCC's TRiO program, which is geared toward putting first-generation, low-income, and disabled students on a proper path to academic success.

After being admitted into the TRiO program, Dison said, "The rest has been a dream come true."

Shortly after her entry into Coconino Community College, Suzanne was awarded the CCC TRiO program's "I Will Succeed" Grant which is given to a select number of top performing TRiO students each year. This was the first of many scholarships that Dison has earned throughout her time at CCC.

In the Fall of 2015, she received the Betty Steyskal Lifelong Learning Scholarship through the CCC Foundation. This scholarship is given to female students who maintain at least a 2.0 GPA or higher with an apparent financial need. Dison wrote a successful essay for this scholarship and was chosen to receive it.

After receiving the Betty Steyskal Scholarship, Dison went on to receive yet another scholarship for the next two consecutive semesters.

She was awarded the Donald Boston Scholarship for the Fall 2016 and Spring 2017 academic semesters.

Receiving these scholarships was a "breath of fresh air" for Dison because she was able to know in advance that she would have scholarship funding to keep her in school for the foreseeable future.

For the entire 2016 academic year, she received the Arizona Business and Professional Women's Foundation Scholarship, based in Phoenix, Arizona.

Dison has excelled as a student at CCC since she entered the College in 2014. She has maintained a 3.5 accumulative grade point average into 2017. This has allowed her to become a member of CCC's Phi Theta Kappa Honor Society. She will continue onto NAU as a member of the Phi Theta Kappa organization.

Dison will move on to NAU, where she will work to earn her bachelor's degree in Graphics and Web Design.

"The scholarships that I have been afforded here at Coconino Community College have been just crucial," said Dison.
